THE LEADING INDUSTRY SOURCE FOR DIGITAL VIDEO NEWS, DISCOUNTS AND TRAINING

To ensure consistency with our message, please use the following purpose statement when incorporating the DVPA into your literature, newsletters and website.

The following content was created for use by our valued partners-

The Digital Video Professionals Association (DVPA) is an international community of new media professionals that provides membership to all those who are involved as visual communicators using digital media. The purpose of the DVPA is to provide members with technical resources, training, industry news, and discounts on hardware and software, and to further expand their understanding and appreciation for the field of Digital Video.

Members of the association share their resources and expertise with each other to further the advancement of the DV industry. By providing affordable access to new media tools and training, the DVPA encourages its members to try new forms of communication, which benefit members, their clients and the visual medium as a whole. Members include, but are not limited to, producers, directors, educators, animators, videographers, editors, motion graphic artists, film groups, production managers, video game developers, advertising agencies, television stations and design studios.

The DVPA is the largest organization in the world devoted exclusively to meeting the needs of those who use DV technology. In short, the DVPA enables members to work faster, be more creative and save money!
